"Isn't it wonderful to think that we'll always have this record of their golden childhood days?"

"George! George! Drop the keys!"

"In addition to refusing to cultivate any wholesome interest in group activities, he is perverse, crafty, and wanton in those in which he does engage. These are, I feel impelled to emphasize, far beyond the outcroppings of normal juvenile mischief; in fact, they are the early evidences of what may be an extraordinarily morbid ingenuity. I have gone to such length in describing the situation because I know that you will want to be thoroughly informed of the facts."

"For heaven's sake, can't you do anything right?"

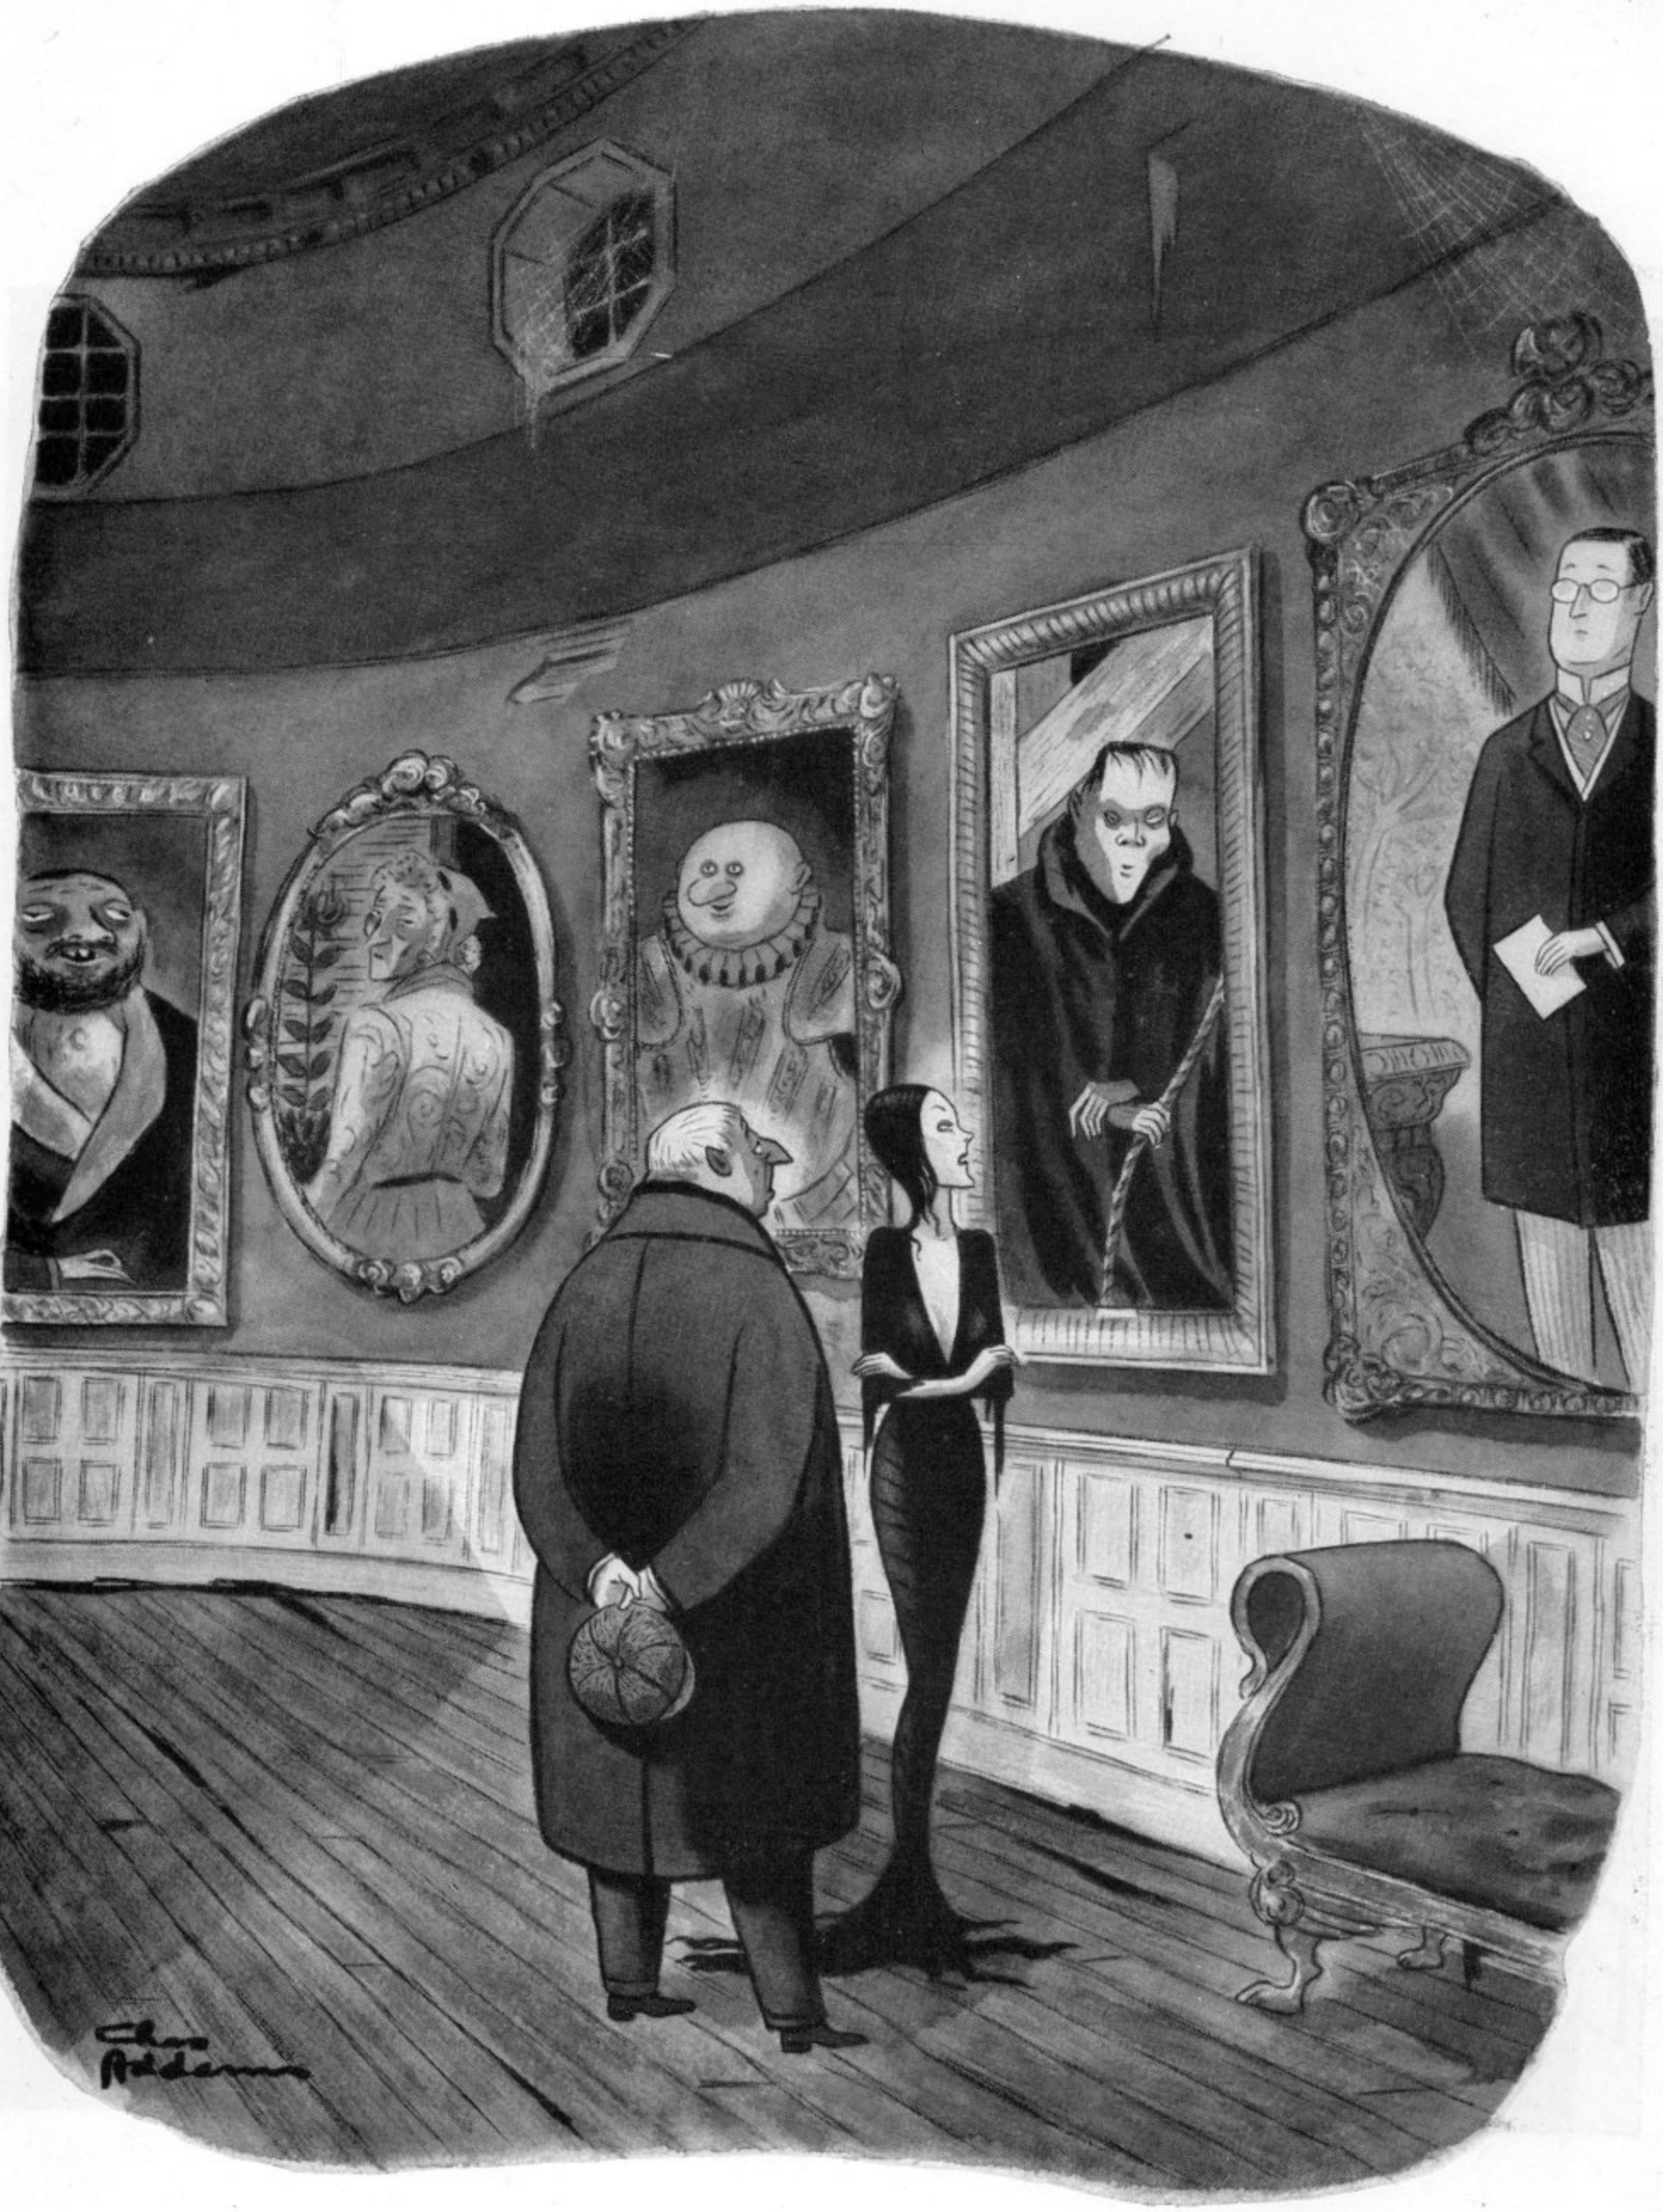
"You're in a strange mood today, I must say."

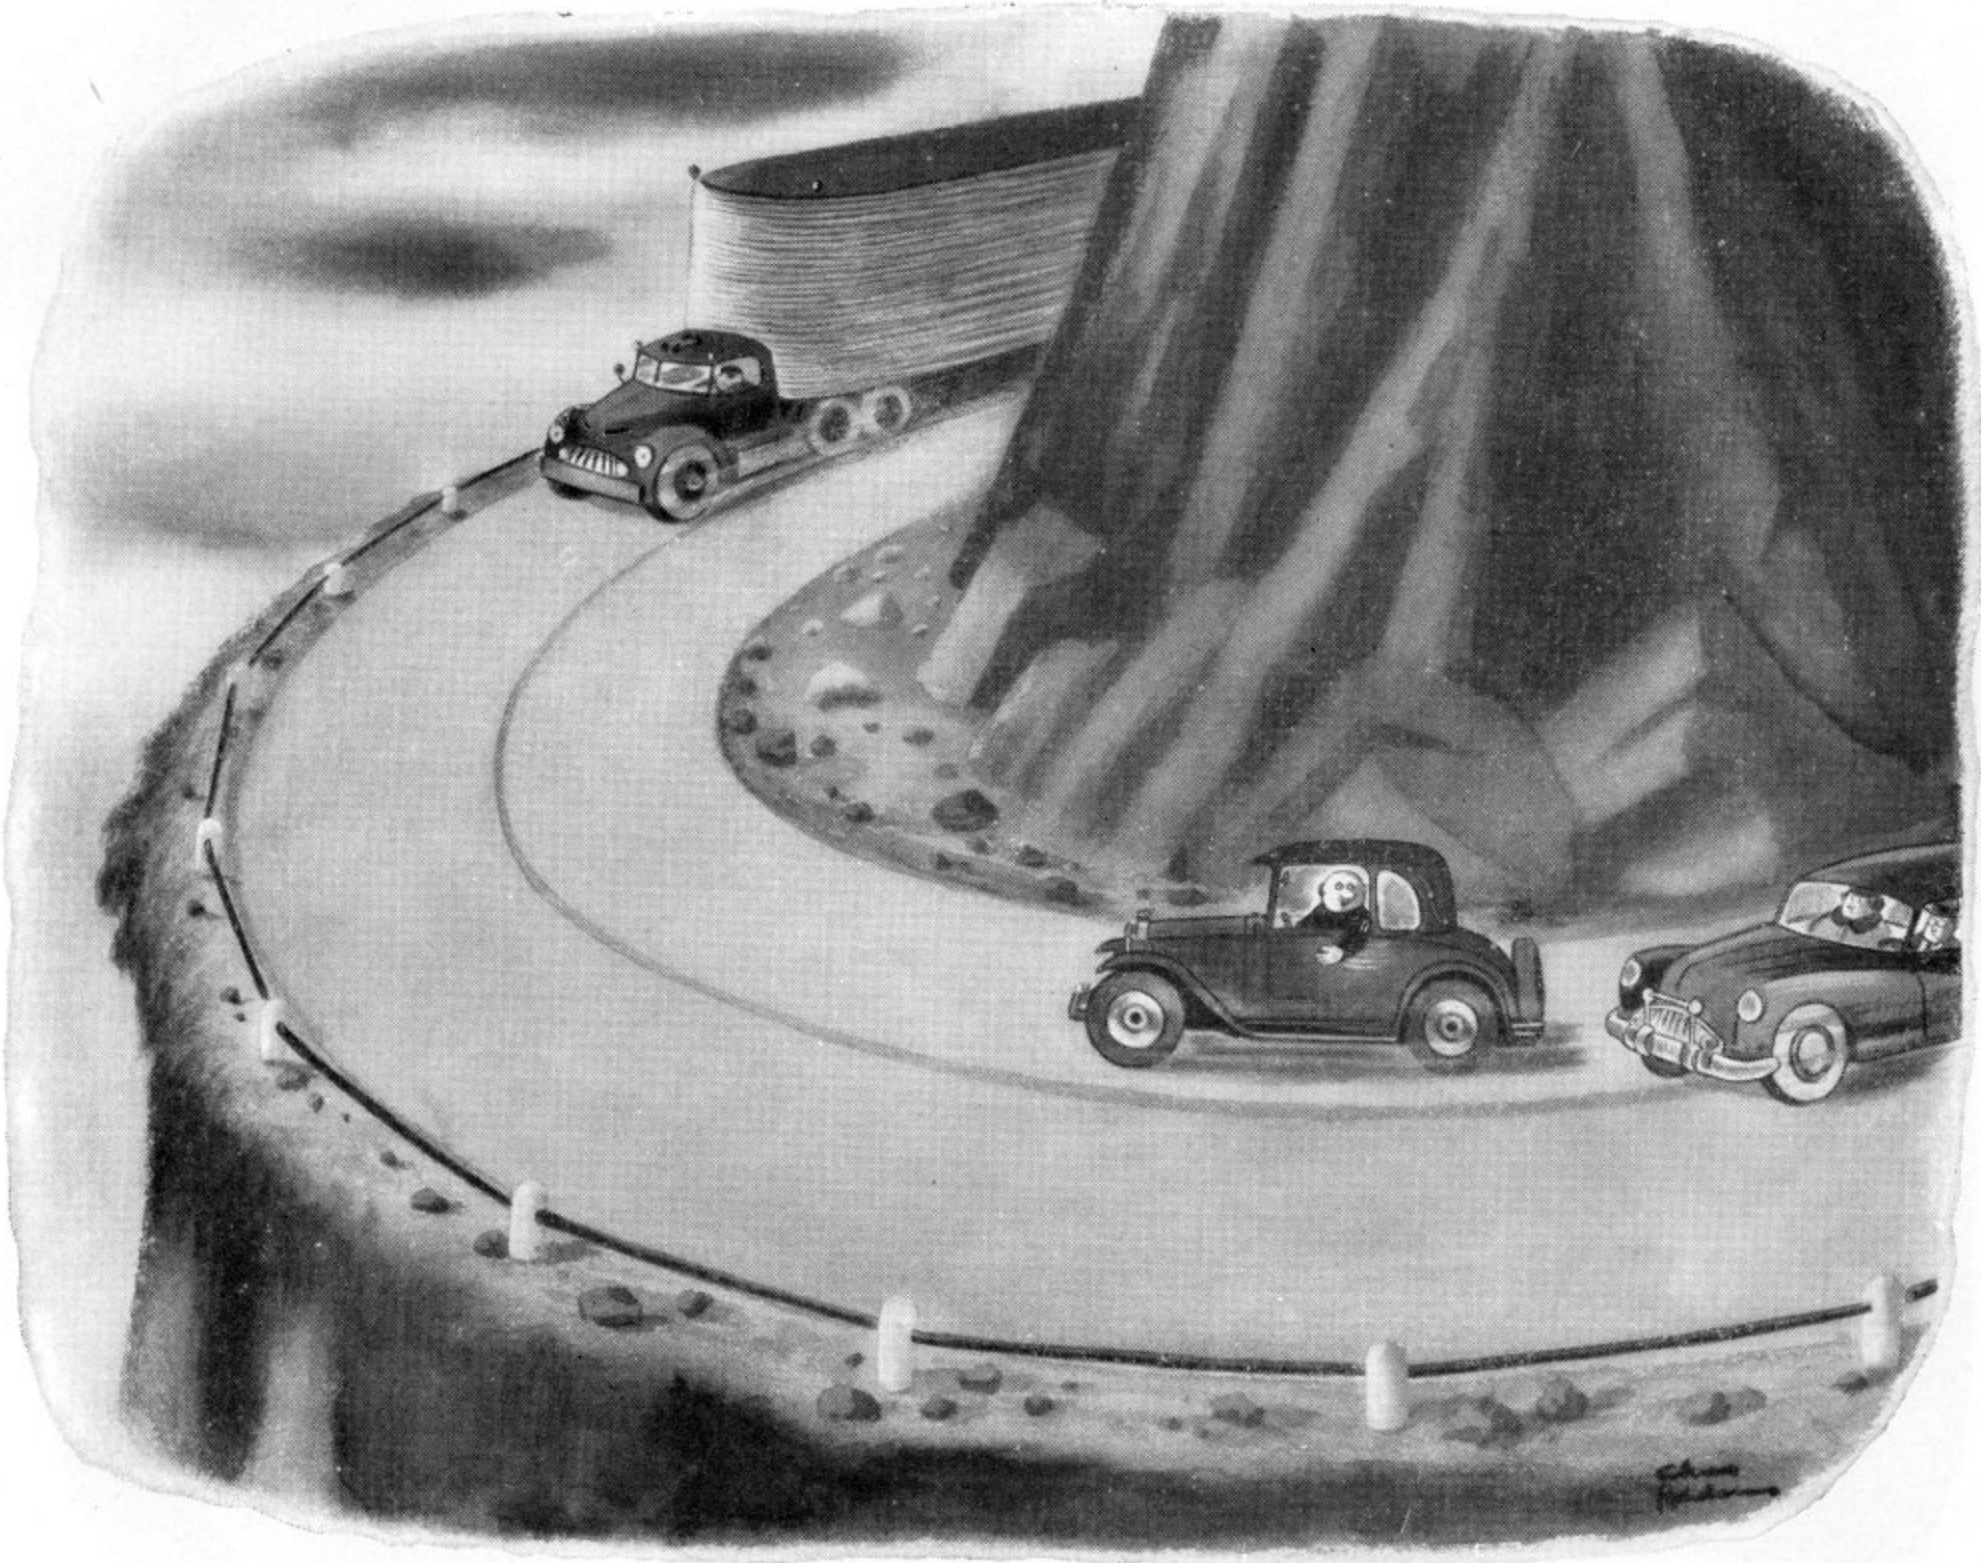
"Dearest: How I wish you were here with me now to see how lovely our little garden has become! The black nightshade is in full bloom, and the death camass we planted last fall is coming along beautifully. The henbane seems to have shot up overnight. You will be glad to know that the dwarf's hair was not affected by the dry spell, as we feared, after all. A myriad delightful little slugs have appeared, as if from nowhere, on the rotten stump by the belladonna patch, and this morning I noticed snake eggs hatching near the pool. Do finish up that business, darling, and hurry home."

"Oh, darling, can you step out for a moment?"



"This is Uncle Zander. Grandfather always called him the black sheep."

"Now, remember, you can have him as long as you feed him and take good care of him. When you don't, back he goes."



"You'll see, chicks, that half the fun is in making it yourself."

"Now kick Daddy good night and run along to bed."
